

cuadro

A modern interpretation of the cottage style

The trend towards handle-free fronts has now moved in on the modern countryhouse scene, and in doing so conveys a new casual look.

The broad-framed cuadro fronts combined with trendy black finger grip profiles lend this kitchen-diner an entirely new, carefree look - everything appears to be seamless. The light lacquer shade Powder lends the kitchen a touch of Nordic lightness whilst the warm Dark Olive Introduces a cosy ambience.

Particularly eye-catching are the high-quality ceramic sliding doors, which together with a panel shelving system in oak, offer convenient access and an abundance of storage space.

Concealed behind a generously sized connecting door (in the closed state not recognisable as such) there is a store room in a class of its own. A delicate shade of Rose decorates the walls and the built-in kitchen components, accentuated only by shelf surfaces in light oak.

Five new natural colour shades in the rational soft lacquer range

For our 2020 in-house exhibition taking place this autumn we are extending our already broad spectrum of soft lacquer colours by adding five harmonious natural shades.

This new, absolutely timeless family of colours is coordinated with the wall colours of Farrow & Ball, a globally operating British manufacturer of paints and wallpapers. Kitchen fronts and wall colour can be harmoniously combined, resulting in a well-balanced, overall concept.

The lighter, softer shades Powder and Rose convey a feeling of airy lightness, and when combined with the darker, stronger colours of Dark Olive, Mocca and Chocolate have a friendly, relaxing effect.
